drinke, to breake the pate of thee, I am a very villaine; come and be hang'd, hast no faith in thee?

Enter Gads-Hill.

Gads-hill. Good-morow Carriers. What's a clocke?

Car. I thinke it bee two a clocke.

Gad. I prethee lend me thy Lanthorne, to see my Gelding in the Stable.

1. Car. Nay by God, soft; I know a tricke worth two of that faith.

Gad. I prethee lend mee thine.

2. Car. I, when? canst tell? Lend mee thy Lanterne (quoth he.) Marry Ile see thee hanged first.

Gad. Sirra Carrier, What time do you meane to come to London?

2. Car. Time enough to go to bed with a Candle, I warrant thee; Comeneighbor Muges, wee'll call vp the Gentlemen: they will along with company, for they haue great charge.

Enter Chamberlaine.

Exeunt.

Gad. What ho, Chamberlaine?

Cham. At hand, quoth Picke-purse.

Gad. That's euen as faire, as at hand, qd. the Chamber-lain, for thou variest no more from picking of purses, then giuing direction doth from labouring: thou layest the plot how.

Cham. Good morrow Master Gads-hill, it holds currant that I told you yesternight, there's a Franklin in the wild of Kent, hath broght three hundred Marks with him in Gold, I heard him tell it to one of his company last night at supper, a kind of Auditor, one that hath abundance of charge too, God knowes what, they are vp already, and call for Egges and Butter: they will away presently.

Gad. Sirra, if they meet not with Saint Nicholas Clarke, Ile giue thee this necke.

Cham. No, Ile none of it; I prethee keepe that for the Hangman, for I know thou worshippst Saint Nicholas, as truly as a man of falshood may.

Gad. What talkest thou to mee of the Hangman? if I hang, Ile make a fat paire of gallows: for if I hang, old sir John hangs with me, and thou knowst hee is no starceling: tut, there are other other Troians that thou dream'st not of, the which for sport sake, are content to do the profession some grace, that would (if matters should be lookt into) for their credit sake make all whole: I am ioyned with no foot-land rakers, no long-staffe sixpenny strikers, none of these mad mustachio purple-hiewd malt-worms, but with nobility and tranquillity, Burgomasters and great Oneyers, such as can hold in, such as will strike sooner then speake, and speake sooner then drinke, & drinke sooner then pray; and yet (Zounds) I lie, for they pray continually to their faint the common-wealth, or rather not pray to her, but prey on her, for they ride vp and downe on her, and make her their booties.

Cham. What, the Common-wealth their Booties? will she hold out Water in foule way?

Gad. She will, she will, Iustice hath liquord her: we steale as in a Castle, cocksure; wee haue the receipt of Ferne-seed, wee walke inuisible.

Cham. Niy, by my faith, I thinke you are more beholding to the night then to Ferne-seed, for your waiking inuisible.

Gad. Giue me thy hand, thou shalt haue a share in our purchase, as I am a true man.

Cham. Nay, rather let me haue it, as you are a false theefe.

Gad. Go to, homo is a common name to all men: bid the Ostler bring my Gelding out of the stable; farewell, ye muddy knaue.

Enter Prince, Poynes, and Peto, &c.

Poynes. Come shelter, shelter, I haue remooued Falstaffes Horse; and he frets like a gum'd veluet.

Prince. Stand close.

Fals. Poynes, Poynes, and bee hangd, Poynes.

Enter Falstaffe.

Prince. Peace ye fat kidneyd rascal, what a brawling doest thou keepe?

Fals. What Poynes? Hail?

Prince. He is walkt vp to the top of the Hill, Ile go seek him.

Fals. I am accurst to rob in that theeu's company, the rascal hath remoued my horse, and tyed him I know not where, if I trauell but 4. foot by the squire further afoor, I shall breake my wind: Well, I doubt not but to die a faire death for all this, if I scape hanging for killing that rogue, I haue forsworn his company hourelly any time this 22. yeer, and yet I am be-
